What is the Washington National Guard?

The Washington National Guard consists of men and women who selflessly help to protect citizens and communities from harm, and provide needed assistance during times of emergencies. The more than 8,000 soldiers, airmen and civilians of the Washington National Guard represent and live in every community across our state, and offer a variety of backgrounds and professions to better serve Washingtonians.

Who is the Washington National Guard?

The Washington National Guard consists of men and women who selflessly help to protect citizens and communities from harm, and provide needed assistance during times of emergencies. The more than 8,000 soldiers, airmen and civilians of the Washington National Guard represent and live in every community across our state, and offer a variety of backgrounds and professions to better serve Washingtonians.

What does that National Guard do?

The mission of the Washington National Guard is to serve and protect local communities in Washington state. When called by the governor, the Washington National Guard responds to help communities and first responders during emergencies like floods, fires, search and rescue missions and hazardous material threats. Citizen-soldiers and airmen focus on saving lives, protecting property, maintaining civil order and ensuring government services continue. Additionally, the Washington National Guard provides resources to monitor air traffic, enhance cyber security and combat illegal drug activity. It also provides education opportunities for at-risk youth at the Washington Youth Academy, where Washington National Guard instructors empower youth to improve their educational level and employment potential.

When needed, the Washington National Guard also serves as part of the total U.S. Military force when called to federal active duty by the President.
A few things to know about the Washington National Guard

• The Washington National Guard is a key component of the Washington Military Department. Other services within the WMD are the Emergency Management Division, the Washington State Guard and the Washington Youth Academy.

• Citizen-soldiers and airmen live across Washington state – and serve their local communities. Washington National Guard units are located in 30 different communities, covering every region of our state.

• The Washington Army National Guard is made up of four major subordinate commands – including the 81st Brigade Combat Team, the 96th Troop Command, the 205th Regiment and the 66th Theater Aviation Command. Additionally, the Washington Air National Guard hosts the Western Air Defense Sector and two wings, the 141st Air Refueling Wing and the 194th Regional Support Wing.

• The Washington National Guard has filled every request for forces since 9/11 while meeting every request to support domestic crises at home—from floods to fires, snow relief and support of local law enforcement.

• Washington National Guard men and women come from a variety of backgrounds and professions – providing Washington state with access to the skills and knowledge of some of the state’s most talented individuals. For example, many excel in the information technology field and work for world renowned IT corporations, offering the Washington National Guard unique skills to address issues like cyber security.

• The Washington National Guard is home of the Homeland Response Force – which consists of approximately 560 citizen-soldiers and airmen organized, trained and equipped to identify, respond to and mitigate the effects of Chemical, Biological, Radiological, Nuclear or high-yield Explosive (CBRNE) events. The Homeland Response Force serves the entire FEMA Region X, which covers Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Alaska.

• Since 9/11, Washington National Guard units have served in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom, and helped provide relief to victims of Hurricanes Katrina, Ike and Gustav and supported fire crews battling California wildfires.
Washington Military Department

The Washington Military Department’s mission is to minimize the impact of emergencies and disasters on people, property, environment, and the economy of Washington State by providing trained and ready forces for state and federal missions. The department also provides structured alternative education opportunities for at-risk youth. Washington Military Department is made up of four major divisions: Along with the Washington National Guard, the state’s Emergency Management, Washington Youth Acedemy, Washington State Guard.

Washington Emergency Management Division

The Washington Emergency Management Division is the branch of the Washington Military Department that provides mitigation advocacy, planning requirements and guidance, training and exercises, response coordination and administration of recovery programs for the civil sector of the state, regardless of the type of hazards. The Washington Emergency Management Division's organizational structure mirrors the functions that take place in the life cycle of emergency management: mitigation, preparedness and response and recovery.

Washington Youth Academy

The Washington Youth Academy is a division of the National Guard Youth ChalleNGe Program. Established under authority of both federal and state law, the WYA is a state-run residential and post-residential intervention for youth who have dropped out of high school or are at risk of dropping out. The goal of the program is to give youth a second chance to become responsible and productive citizens by helping them improve their life skills, education levels, and employment potential.

Washington State Guard

The Washington State Guard is an all-volunteer unit organized under the Military Department of the State of Washington. Its members come from all walks of life. They normally serve without remuneration and meet monthly, or more often as needed, within organized units stationed at strategic locations throughout the State.
In January, Cobra Gold 2014 brought soldiers from the 176th Engineer Company to Thailand to support an engineer civic assistance project. Guardsmen constructed a new schoolhouse for the communities of Sukhothai province.

Also in January, 54 members of Alpha Battery 2-146 Field Artillery Regiment closed the doors for the last time at their armory in Montesano and moved their belongings to Fort Walla Walla. Originally based in Walla Walla more than a century ago, the unit had moved to Montesano, but has returned to Walla Walla after serving in Iraq and Afghanistan.

On February 4th, members of the Washington National Guard secured and escorted the players, coach, staff and others of the Seattle Seahawks after they dominated Super Bowl XLVIII. An estimated 700,000 screaming fans packed the streets of Seattle on a crisp winter day to see Seattle’s first ever Lombardi Trophy. The WNG was asked to assist with the victory parade because of an ongoing statewide relationship and community outreach effort between the Guard and the Seahawks. “The Seahawks and the Sounders FC are proud partners and supporters of the Guard, with activities like this taking place throughout the year,” said Mike Flood, Seahawks vice president of community relations. “We salute Washington National Guard service members and families for their dedication to our country and the great state of Washington!”

On March 22nd, moments after the devastating landslide in Snohomish County, the State Emergency Operations Center at Camp Murray was activated and employees began reporting to ensure a coordinated, efficient response to a situation that for many people was as devastating as anything they had seen in their lifetime. The Guard’s Homeland Response Force was activated for their first real world mission since its inception in 2011. More than 800 Washington National Guardsmen, including more than 100 with specialized search and extraction training and experience worked alongside local first responders and residents during the search and rescue operation. The EOC remained active for 38 weeks, until the recovery operation was scaled back. Members of the Washington Military Department’s Emergency Management Division, along with partner agencies, spend several weeks each year exercising their coordination and emergency response skills allowing them to react quickly and effectively when disaster strikes.

Also in March, the 141st and 92d Air Refueling Wings at Fairchild AFB welcomed their new headquarters building. The state of the art Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design certified building, a third party certification of high-performance “green” building is the new headquarters for both wings. “Today marks a significant point in history for the partnership between the 141st and 92d Air Refueling Wings,” said Col. Daniel Swain, Commander of the 141st ARW. “With the cutting of this ribbon and the opening of this new combined wing headquarters, together we take another step towards strengthening the bonds and partnership between two magnificent organizations.”

In April, 27 members of the Base Defense Operations Center returned from a nine month tour in Kuwait.

Bottom Right: Mr. Doug Jackson, Jackson Contracting Group, Col. Brian Newberry, 92nd Air Refueling Wing Commander, Cathy McMorris Rodgers, Wash. State Representative, Patty Murray, Wash. State Senator and Col. Daniel Swain, 141st Air Refueling Wing Commander all participate in the ribbon cutting ceremony of the new 92nd ARW and 141st ARW Headquarters building at Fairchild AFB, Wash. on Mar. 20, 2014. The New building was built to replace the current headquarters building that was opened in 1943.
Three additional members of the 141st Military History Detachment returned from a 10 month tour of Afghanistan where they collected terabytes of historical information from units overseas for placement at the Center of Military History in Washington D.C.

May brought home the soldiers of the 96th Military Engagement Team from a nine month tour across Kuwait and Jordan. The teams traveled around the region meeting with foreign military officials to discuss a wide variety of topics and work on building strong relationships.

In June, members of the WNG’s 116th ASOS conducted an airborne operation over Normandy, France, parachuting into the legendary Iron Mike drop zone in remembrance of the 70th anniversary of the D-Day invasion. The 116th ASOS JTACs are the professional descendants of the brave forward air controllers, pathfinders and forward observers who leapt out of airplanes over St. Mere Eglise and stormed ashore at Utah and Omaha beaches on June 6th, 1944. They were there to commemorate the largest airborne and amphibious assault in world history, and the event that broke Hitler’s stranglehold on Europe. “It was an incredible week of service in honor of the veterans and the people of France,” said Lt. Col. Raed Gyekis, who led the 116th Normandy JTAC team. “It was truly humbling for our Guardsmen to walk in the footsteps of these giants who changed the fate of the free world, and to see the level of gratitude that still exists in France for America.”

Also in June, C. Co. 112th Aviation Security & Support located at Fairchild AFB received the first of its 6 new UH-72 “Lakota” helicopters, the first brand new helicopters the Washington National Guard has received in over 50 years.

The state EOC faced its second call to action when Washington experienced its worst wildfire season in state history. The wildfires that swept through north-central Washington this summer were a prime example of the type of event that the EOC is designed to respond to. Nearly 375,000 acres throughout seven counties were scorched, along with hundreds of homes. More than 750 National Guardsmen supported the efforts of the Washington State Department of Natural Resources, while the staff of the EOC often pulled 14-16 hour shifts to stay on top of the flood of assistance requests. In all, the EOC fielded approximately 100 requests for assistance for various state, county, municipal and residential needs during the course of the wildfire support efforts.

During September more than 450 U.S. and 300 Japanese forces trained together in a wide array of exercises, such as live-fire and air assault missions for the 16th annual joint exercise called Operation Rising Thunder. “The focus of this exercise is to train combined arms in conjunction with maneuver and firepower,” noted Col. Takashi Goto, a JGSDF Commander.

The exercise did just that, combining Japanese forces with U.S. forces, which included soldiers from the Washington National Guard’s 66th Theater Aviation Command (TAC) and 341st Military Intelligence Battalion (MI BN), the Army’s 2nd Stryker Brigade Combat Team, 7th Infantry Division and Marines with the 6th Air, Naval, Gunfire Liaison Company (ANGLICO). Soldiers from 66th TAC provided aviation support throughout Operation Rising Thunder; while linguists from 341st MI BN worked to lighten the language barrier by translating between Japanese and U.S. forces.

Your National Guard was there
In July nearly 900 Washington National Guardsmen were called to serve in support of the Chiwaukum Complex Fires, which burned near communities in Chelan County. The guard provided more than 100 citizen-soldiers and medic in support of the Washington Department of Natural Resources efforts on the ground. This was the first major call up of Washington National Guard ground firefighting crews since 2001.

Your National Guard was there

In July nearly 900 Washington National Guardsmen were called to serve during the Carlton Complex Fire; the largest wildfire in Washington state history. The fire ripped through Okanogan and Chelan County, putting homes and businesses in the towns of Pateros, Twisp, Winthrop and Brewster in danger. Guardsmen were called to assist the Washington Department of Natural Resources with fighting the massive fire by dropping more than a million gallons of water on the blaze. Other Guardsmen conducted more than 1000 health and wellness checks through the area, as well as helped sort thousands of donations and food items.

Rescue workers assess the mud on the west side of the State Route 530 Landslide on March 26th. Washington Air National Guard members partnered with the civilian volunteers to continue to search the area. (Washington Air National Guard Photo/Maj. Tawny Dotson)

Your National Guard was there

On Saturday, March 22, 2014, at 10:37 a.m., a major mudslide occurred near the town of Oso. The State Route 530 land slide, as it would later be called, covered a one square mile area, destroying a neighborhood in its path. In the following days, Gov. Jay Inslee would activate more than 750 Washington National Guardsmen to assist with the Search and Rescue efforts. The Guard also provided multiple engineering units to create a search grid that provided guidance to the search teams. The Homeland Response Force activated their decontamination units which would provide support by cleaning found items and decontaminating the searchers.
